

National Home Inspector Certification Council

FEE STRUCTURE

The NHICC Fee structure is based on providing a sensible, reasonable fee for all home inspectors. There are 2 basic rates. An inspector is classified as either a member of an association with an "Administrative Contract" or not. The "Administrative Contract" provides a reduced administration rate from the base rate for home inspection members that have achieved such formal acknowledgment with the National Home Inspector Certification Council. Fees may be paid at our PayPal webpage.

Administrative Contract – refers to a specific home inspection association and its members that are currently recognized under the "Contract" of the NHICC National Certification Program. Administrative Contracts must be renewed annually to remain in effect. All administrative contracts are based on terms set by the NHICC.

Certification verification is decided by the National Admissions Board and not the NHICC.

FYI: Did you know the average price for membership in a home inspection association in Canada is approximately $500+ per year? Now let's say you compare that over a 5 year period with the NHICC.

That equates to a difference of $5 \times $500 = \2500 versus the initial first year at $$600 + (4 \times $125 \text{ for renewals}) = \1100 with the NHICC.

BTW: This also includes your TIPR exam fee. (Administrative Contract fees are less)
